Cordell Pumpkin Festival planned

The 33rd Annual Cordell Pumpkin Festival, hosted by the Cordell Chamber of Commerce, is coming up this weekend on Saturday, October 10th. The festival is a funfilled day for the community, and it seems to grow every year with repeat vendors, food trucks, and contestants. This year, the festival must make a few sacrifices like the pancake breakfast and kiddie train ride. However, it's also gaining some new events: a cornhole tournament at 11 AM and a bike ride at 8 AM. Additionally, there will be a baking contest beginning at 8 AM – goods can be dropped off at the tag agency. The festival will also take on a nostalgic feel as they have moved the location to the Cordell Square.

The annual car show is back with an audio contest and burnout contest. Signups can be done from 7:30 AM - 10 AM on the day for $25 per car. Pre-registrations can be filed for the car competitions at the Chamber office or at Gatlin's Garage any day before.

There will be no live entertainment throughout the afternoon this year, but the Pride of Cordell marching band will be performing a concert on the courthouse steps at 9 AM. Then, the band will join in on the parade at 10 AM. Cordell's band has a new director this year and a talented group of kids; so, it'll be interesting to hear what they have in store.

The festival will also see many of the yearly vendors return as they fill the streets with colorful displays and tantalizing aromas.

Make sure to plan a trip out to Cordell to participate in all the festivities.

Outdoor political candidate forum scheduled Oct. 6th

The tradition of outdoor political debates and forums goes back centuries and the Weatherford Area Chamber of Commerce will bring this old-fashioned experience to life on October 6th from 6:00 - 7:30 PM at the Rotary Amphitheater at Rader Park. The forum will cover local elections that will be on the November 3rd General Election ballot.

"Bring your lawn chairs or blankets and feel free to pack a picnic dinner," says Chamber Public Affairs Committee Co-Chair Jeff Berrong. "In the current health environment, we wanted to plan an event that would be safe for everyone. There's plenty of room for folks to spread out in the park around the amphitheater, and there's a high-quality sound system so hearing the candidates should not be an issue." Spectators will need to bring their own lawn chairs as seating will not be provided. The Chamber strongly urges attendees to bring masks to wear while they are up moving around and not seated.

The first forum will feature Democrat Juan Garcia and Republican Anthony Moore, the two candidates for the open District 57 seat in the Oklahoma House of Representatives. Immediately following will be a second forum with all four candidates for the Weatherford City Commission on stage together. Ward I candidates are incumbent Rick Miller and Terri Lockhart and Ward III candidates are incumbent Warren Goldmann and Lezley Bell. Jeff Berrong will be the moderator for the evening.

All registered voters, residing in Custer County (and parts of Beckham, Blaine, Caddo, & Canadian counties), are eligible to vote in the House District 57 election and all voters who reside within the city limits of Weatherford are eligible to vote in both City Commission elections. The forum is open to the public and will also be broadcast live on 100.3 FM and 1590 AM. For more information, please contact the Chamber at 772-7744.

WORSHIP THAT LEADS TO MISSION

On the wall behind my computer is a framed statement that I read every day. It simply states, "Lord, you have an assignment for me today. Give me eyes to see and faith to believe that you can use me. May I not let fear or other supposed hindrances defeat your plan for me." I don't Jim Morrison remember where I got it. It is not a phrase taken from the Scriptures, yet it closely resembles Biblical truths. John 15:5 says "If a man remains (abides) in me and I in him. He will bear much fruit; apart from me you can do nothing." Most of us feel good after having done something for someone. There is a sense of satisfaction about having set aside our agenda and releasing our energy to help our fellowman. But it is not a matter of our going about the day looking for something to do for someone so we can feel good. If we are staying connected to God through worship and the spiritual disciplines it will be the natural outflow of the indwelling Holy Spirit that produces the reaction of fruit bearing. That is staying connected or abiding.

Reading so many Scriptures each day is good. But, if you are doing so hoping that good works will automatically follow so God will be pleased, your motives need an adjustment. Some follow reading plans to fulfill a goal or complete a plan. That is not all bad but the objective should be to hear from God and enter into relationship with Him that will result in Christ being put on display in your life. That may come from reading a few verses over and over, meditating on them, praying them back to God, and letting the truths radiate through your daily walk. You don't have to forcefully be looking for good works to please God. We come to God through the Scriptures to seek his face, worshiping him in submission to his Lordship, and valuing his worth above all else. The good works will follow as we abide in Him.

Someone has said, "If worship does not lead to mission, then you haven't really worshiped." Recently, our church had a prayer plan whereby groups were to assemble after church, at various schools, including the university, to pray for those institutions. Since my vocational life had revolved around college students, I went to the SWOSU campus. No college students were present. Yet, they had just come from an hour of worship. Apparently, worship had not translated into mission. Maybe I'm being too hard on them; maybe the hours at the cafeteria made it necessary to eat first. I just have the feeling that for many of us, our understanding of worship means attending church, singing a few songs, and listening to a sermon. We go away feeling that we have done God a favor by giving Him a couple of hours. We sing songs of praise, but seldom is heard those songs that challenge us to go out into the highways and byways to bring hurting people to the banquet table of God's redeeming love.

five carries and three touchdowns. Coach Reagan Roof utilized the game to get some of his backup players in skill positions some game-time experience. The Eagles will be at home this week to play the Newcastle Racers (2-1).

The Clinton Red Tornadoes have had to be the definition of flexibility this season. With cancellations and the movement of games, Clinton went to Kingfisher to play Class 3A's #7 Yellowjackets. Coach John Higbee and the team came home with an upset by the score of 21-10. The Red Tornadoes (3-1) go on the road again this Friday to Cache (3-2). The Bulldogs lost to Newcastle on Saturday night, 41-40.

Roger Mills County was probably the most remote of Oklahoma's counties in 1893. It lacked both telegraphs and telephones, there were no railroads and its postal delivery was still inadequate. The best form of communicating critical news was by horse-mounted couriers, but even this system was not a sure-fire solution.

In the Fall of 1893, a former Texas Ranger, known as "Red Tom" O'Hare, set out for Roger Mills county in response to a letter he had received concerning cattle thieves. O'Hare owned cattle in Roger Mills and figured he would ride out to protect his assets as well as do a bit of Ranger work. Leaving Ft. Elliot, near Mobeetie, Texas, O'Hare arrived in Cheyenne, Oklahoma, on November 18th, 1893. Because he was under federal commission, O'Hare had authority in Oklahoma Territory.

Once reaching the town, O'Hare stabled his horse at the livery stable and set off to meet up with several old acquaintances. Together, the small group visited saloon after saloon, which were plentiful at the time. Once they were "slicked up," the boisterous carousers set out looking for trouble.

Called "Red Tom" for his flaming red hair, O'Hare was known as a decent man and was likeable enough when sober, but once possessed by alcohol, he turned into an ornery, quarrelsome badger. Going from one establishment to the next, O'Hare and his friends tried to rouse trouble. Knowing he was a bad drunk, most ignored them.

It was early in the morning when O'Hare came to Thurman's store. Inside were several prominent townsmen such as Oscar Casady and John B. Harrison (who would later be a member of the Constitutional Convention of Oklahoma). O'Hare started up a conversation with the townsmen while a Cheyenne Indian, known as Wolf Hair, traded with E.K. (Klebe) Thurmond. Wolf Hair held a sack of flour under his arm and was known as being very peaceful.

By 1893, the Cheyenne tribes had settled, rather well, into their allotted lands in both Custer and Roger Mills counties. They were quickly becoming good, law-abiding citizens. Although some of the older Cheyenne had been present at both the Sand Springs and Washita engagements and held a wellwarranted prejudice toward their white neighbors, what was to happen next threw fuel on a smoldering fire.

Once "Red Tom" O'Hare took notice of Wolf Hair, he began to curse him. With gun in hand, O'Hare taunted the young Cheyenne who spoke little to no English. Wolf Hair was worried and frightened. When a disgusted Harrison opened the door to leave, Wolf Hair dashed outside behind him, running to his buckboard and hurrying out of town.

The O'Hare Incident

A short while later, O'Hare retrieved his horse and followed the buckboard southeast of town. Two shots rang out. Soon O'Hare came trotting back before concerned citizens and announced, "There's a dead Injun over yonder, and if he's shot over the left eye, he's mine." O'Hare handed over his Winchester rifle to Sheriff "Skility Bill" Johnson, who placed him in jail. He and Deputy Frank Hunt rode off over the hill southeast of town. There they found the body of Wolf Hair with a gunshot wound over his left eye.

There were several Cheyenne Indians in town at this time. They took the deceased body of Wolf Hair and left town. Soon, news of the murder spread among the Cheyenne, and a call for justice or revenge went out. Fearing an uprising, the townsfolk sent couriers out in all directions to warn settlers that there may be an outbreak among the Cheyenne and to take precautions.

The Guthrie Capital newspaper ran the following article on December 1, 1893: (Keep in mind that this is 1893 and the attitudes of the time were very tainted and different.)

"A courier arrived from Cantonment (present day Canton) yesterday and reported that a company of U.S. Troops left Camp Supply to head off a band of blood-thirsty Cheyenne, who have escaped the military grounds and are making for Cheyenne country where they are going to wreak havoc on Tom O'Hare for killing a prominent young Cheyenne brave named Red Blanket, who was caught in the act of stealing cattle." Note the inaccuracies. Wolf Hair's name was changed to Red Blanket and now he is accused of a crime for which he did not commit. These inaccuracies are due to the lack of adequate communication forms and too much word-of-mouth.

General Nelson Miles, who was at Ft. Reno (present day El Reno) had been notified that his troops had yet to overtake the Cheyenne band who numbered around 80 braves. Sheriff Johnson had sworn in a posse to protect the county residents, fearing it may be too few and too late before the Federal troops would arrive. Meanwhile, O'Hare was still locked away in jail.

On November 30, 1893, the Arapaho Bee, another newspaper, contained this article: "From all we can learn, the shooting of Bob Tail (yet again, a different name for Wolf Hair) was a causeless & cold-blooded affair. If this is brought out by full evidence, there should be no question as to the penalty. The Indians of this country are doing a great deal better than could be expected of them under the changed condition and are uniformly quiet, orderly & respectful. They are deserving of the protection of the law and the sympathy of the citizens."

Hav for Sale: small squares Straw, Bermuda, Alfalfa in 21 bale bundles.

Round Bales: Bermuda, Alfalfa. Various types &

The 80 or so Cheyenne braves from the Canton area never reached the town of Cheyenne. They were stopped by Federal troops and escorted back to their homes. However, another band of 84 Cheyenne from Roger Mills and Custer counties did head into town under the leadership of Chief White Shield (White Shield Creek, just north of Hammon, bears his name) and two other chiefs along with an interpreter known as Mike Big Bear from Carlisle Indian Academy. Wellarmed, they demanded O'Hare. Albeit sullen and agitated, they remained peaceful. They held council with the town leaders, represented by Sheriff Johnson and county attorney J.W.McMurty along with Joe Purdy. Purdy was on good terms with the Cheyenne and acted as an ambassador of goodwill. Johnson explained that he was under oath to protect O'Hare until he could be brought to court and, if convicted, a punishment would be made accordingly. The Cheyenne finally agreed to return home.

O'Hare hired Temple Houston, the son of none other than Sam Houston, from the Woodward area, as his attorney. Houston managed to obtain a change of venue to Canadian county where O'Hare was tried and acquitted on Christmas Eve 1894.

Unfortunately, the Cheyenne people received no justice for Wolf Hair's death. However, the attitudes of early settlers softened toward the Indians due to the newspaper articles. Some would always see the Cheyenne as "savages," but most decided to live peacefully with them as neighbors.

"The Coin Guy" New Mexico National Bank Note Sold in Recent Auction

Collecting National Bank Notes is popular with "rag pickers" As it is a specialized field. Between 1863 and 1935 there were 14,348 charted national banks. Of these banks only 12,635 issued paper currency.

All National Bank notes from the continental territories are very desirable. Those from New Mexico are in the top 10 states with the scarcest note populations. Out of 68 banks there exist only 2,000 examples.

A very rare example is an 1875 $20 note issued by the 2nd National Bank of Santa Fe, New Mexico Territory. It was signed by

Trent Boesen

Lehman Spiegelberg, president and John Watts as cashier. It was certified by the Paper Money Guaranty (PMG) as a Very fine 20.

The above rare note, super-imposed with picture of the issuing bank, sold at auction in 1997 for $4,800. On September 19, 2020 this same note sold at auction for $18,000.

If you are interested in collecting U.S. currency, call The Coin Guy at 580-890-8076. We can meet at Jerry's and talk about your interests. Thanks for reading.

Newest Bulldogs of the Week are Gracen Williamson and Brock Mason

Doug Self SWOSU Sports Information Director

The SWOSU Athletic Department is proud to continue the selection for Bulldogs of the Week during the fall by choosing SWOSU Softball's Gracen Williamson and Bulldog Football's Brock Mason as the newest award winners.

The award is brought to you by Wright Wradio, the home of the Bulldogs over the airwaves on both 95.5 'The Coyote' and 100.3 'Coyote Classic.'

Williamson (Woodward, Okla.) is in her second year at SWOSU after joining the Bulldogs from Cowley County CC. She chose to attend SWOSU because it felt like home the moment she stepped on campus and the atmosphere gives a bigcollege experience while still feeling like a family community. Her favorite memory from her time at SWOSU has been the many new friends she has made, which has built strong connections that will last a lifetime.

Quote: "The best part of this semester is being back on campus trying to find a new normal. Having last semester cut short really deepened my appreciation for the college experience and taught me how quickly things can change."

Favorite Athlete: My favorite athlete is my Dad. He has been with me every step of my athletic career from tee ball to the SWOSU Softball team and everything in between. He has taught me more than the fundamentals of sports, he's taught me how to be a better person.

Personal Goals for Season: My personal goal this semester is to make the most of every opportunity. I will not take anything for granted. I want to give everything my best effort because we have certainly learned that everything can be taken away in the blink of an eye.

Mason (Tuttle, Okla.) is a two-year starter for SWOSU's Offensive Line and a four-year member of the Bulldog Football program. He chose to attend SWOSU because it was the best opportunity to play football, study Engineering Physics and Mathematics and graduate with minimal debt and his favorite memory as a Bulldog was defeating Southern Nazarene last season because the offensive line had a big game which allowed the Dawgs to run the ball well.

Quote: "While it is sad we had our season cancelled this fall, I have been able to use the extra time to focus on my classes."
